Where you are likely to run across it in some five or six years, then look at the man who bought farm lands in Sumter County when they were cheap—DON'T YOU BELIEVE THAT YOU WILL REGRET NOT BUYING AT THE TIME HE DID?

Why try to cultivate lands that are hilly and barren, and which are unsuited for our money crops, when there are good lands within your reach, that will produce many times more with less effort and expense.

The lands in Sumter County are increasing in value very fast, they are level, free from stones and well drained, and with intelligent cultivation will double in value within a very short time.

We have good farms in five miles of Sumter, the largest cotton market in South Carolina, which are capable of bale or more to the acre, healthy and within three miles of good school, at a price which will move you to look them over.

Easy terms, cash being no item, you can select a farm now, deposit a small amount as evidence of good faith, first payment to be made December 1st.

You should buy lands now that will be a joy to you in your old age, also, that will be worth something to your children, don't leave the boy a place on which you have been unable to get ahead, but leave him land that will make him rich.

BATTLES OF THE 7TH S. C. BATTALION.

Mr. Editor: Since my sketch published some time since on Hagood's Brigade at the siege of Petersburg, I have been asked many questions by old comrades in regard to many instances that occurred in the 7th S. C. Battalion during our services in Virginia. Not being able to answer them all from memory, if you will please publish this I will deem it a pleasure to present to our old surviving comrades the inventory of battles fought and camps occupied during the war. The data was in a diary of our beloved Col. James H. Rion.
